

Connecting Africa's cities with developers, investors, planners

The African Real Estate & Infrastructure Summit will this November showcase city development plans on the continent at the CTICC in Cape Town.

Addis Ababa © Dereje Belachew – 123RF.com

CEO of Wesgro Tim Harris; executive director of Kampala's Capital City Authority Dr Jennifer Musisi; UCLG-A secretary general Jean Pierre Elong Mbassi; and Business Botswana director Lekwalo Mosienyane form part of the lineup of headline experts from around Africa that will address attendees from 2-3 November 2016.

UCLG-A: United Cities and Local Governments of Africa

The African Real Estate & Infrastructure Summit aims to gather the full spectrum of the continent's real estate sector and plans to assist African cities and governments to secure international investment for commercial real estate development and infrastructure projects that will contribute to urban development plans (UDPs).

Some of the continent's leading cities, including Lusaka, Kigali, Dar es Salaam and Nairobi, have been invited to showcase their UDPs in a discussion format. This will allow for delegates and exhibitors to understand the future plans of developing cities and build business relationships with key city officials including: city managers, city mayors, city council members, town planners, town clerks, district officials and city and finance directors amongst others.

View the full conference agenda.

The African Real Estate & Infrastructure Summit is organised by Spintelligent and the African office of Clarion Events.