All interested candidates are to apply online and shortlisted applicants will then be invited to meet the recruiters.

Abdulaziz Al Ali, Emirates group's executive vice president for human resources says: "There's no more exciting airline than Emirates for anyone interested in a flying career, and we've received tremendous interest since we began our recruitment drive for cabin crew in November.

"While parts of the application process are done online, we always make the effort to meet our candidates in person whenever we can, and that is why our talent acquisition team is doing a whirlwind 30-city tour over the next six weeks to assess prospective candidates."
