

Continent's best beers awarded at African Beer Cup

Gqeberha-based owner-run microbrewery Richmond Hill scooped the title of 'Best Beer in Africa' at the 2023 African Beer Cup, which is the largest beer competition on the African continent.

The winning beer, a dark ale aged in Shiraz barrels with raspberries and peaches, grabbed a gold medal and then wowed the best-of-show judges, beating 231 other beers in the competition.

This was the fourth edition of the African Beer Cup, which is held annually in Cape Town. This year, 52 judges from 16 different countries joined forces to evaluate 232 beers from 20 different African nations. A total of 60 medals were awarded at an awards night held on 22 April at Woodstock Brewery in Cape Town.

The African Beer Cup is unique in that every beer in the competition is judged twice. All judging is blind, with judges knowing the beer style but not the manufacturer or beer name. Beers are judged to the Beer Judge Certification Program (BJCP) guidelines, which focus on stylistic accuracy rather than personal preference. Beers must reach a certain score threshold in order to be considered for a medal, with a maximum of one gold, one silver and one bronze per category.

The 13 gold medallists went head-to-head in a Best of Show round to determine the Best Beer in Africa. Rather than a trophy, the winner receives a custom painting to celebrate their win. This year's painting was created by Eastern Cape artist Chanel Louise Gardner, whose work focuses on using upcycled materials.

South African brandies shine on world stage

25 Apr 2023

Richmond Hill's founder and brewer Niall Cook commented on the brewery's triumph, "The African Beer Cup has quickly become the most prestigious beer competition in Africa. To have a beer collect an award in the competition is an amazing achievement, however, to further walk away with the Best Beer in Africa Award for 2023 is on another level! Everyone at RHBC is on an all-time high. We are extremely proud as a company and are thankful for all our supporters that have driven us to reach these new heights."

As well as medals and the overall prize, special recognition is awarded to a beer that showcases traditional African ingredients in a beer. The 2023 Basa African Celebration Award, sponsored by the Beer Association of South Africa, was awarded to, based in the Cape Winelands, for its African Wild Soul, a collaboration with Tolokazi Beer.

The beer is a blend of farmhouse ale and umqombothi (traditional sorghum beer), aged in wine barrels for two years. Soul Barrel, which won the Best Beer in Africa in 2022, specialises in championing local ingredients and brewing traditions in their beers.
