

Burger King censors its 'food porn' to combat cravings during SA lockdown

Issued by Burger King

24 Apr 2020

It has been over three weeks since the start of the national lockdown, and South Africans are still a fair way from being reunited with their favourite Whopper meal. In the midst of this, Burger King has come to realise that tempting its customers with salacious pictures of its delicious treats when no one can have them, is simply not fair.

“ We’ve heard you. Since #21DayLockdown began, our TL has been blowing up with 🍔🍔🍔🍔🍔 It made us think: “Maybe tempting people with BK treats when they can’t have them isn’t fair.” So, starting now, our ads will go into lockdown too. Out of respect for you and your taste buds. pic.twitter.com/1PqhOnVUxq— BURGER KING® South Africa (@BurgerKingZA) April 9, 2020 ”

This is according to Ezelna Jones, group marketing executive at Burger King, who says that the company has recently embarked on a campaign to reduce visibility of all digital ‘food porn’ in its advertising for the duration of the nationwide lockdown. “Since the start of lockdown, many customers have reacted to our posts on Facebook and Twitter with a mix of longing and sadness. This includes all too frequent Tweets containing the phrases “these cravings are torture”, or even just sad face emojis.”

“ They’re as tender as our hearts, but you can’t have them for a while... so we won’t tempt you. Introducing new Lockdown Chicken Nuggets. Censored to reduce cravings. pic.twitter.com/rEwvLEnW1k— BURGER KING® South Africa (@BurgerKingZA) April 14, 2020 ”

“Out of respect for our long-suffering customers during the Whopperless days that are still ahead, Burger King has therefore committed to tastefully censoring all gratuitous images of our delicious meals to reduce cravings. In addition, we have renamed our most popular food items to further help our customers avoid thinking about the great flavour of our meals.”

Jones explains that all images of Burger King’s meals and quality ingredients will henceforth be pixelated, and the popular items, ‘Whopper’ and ‘Chicken Nuggets’, will now be known as ‘Lockdown Whopper’ and ‘Lockdown Chicken Nuggets’. These measures will stay in place, and more food items will be renamed for the sake of decency, until the necessary nationwide lockdown is lifted.

“ Hey fam, our time apart has left an extra-extra-large hole in our hearts. We’re in this thing together though, so we won’t tempt your taste buds. Say hello to the Lockdown BIG KING® XXL. Censored to reduce cravings. pic.twitter.com/wgZuFdq2FB— BURGER KING® South Africa (@BurgerKingZA) April 21, 2020 ”

Fortunately, Jones can report that Burger King’s lockdown campaign has already been met with a significant measure of support. “Some of the responses that we have received so far include ‘well played’, ‘Aaah, I love this’, and ‘you’re always considering my feelings’. Honestly, it is truly rewarding to know that we have already made a (tiny) difference.”

Since it will still be some time before Whoppers can legally be bought and sold in the country again, Burger King has stated that it will remain committed to helping South Africans manage their cravings.

“ OK, time for us to address a few things of our own: your cravings. We know they're getting worse. That's why we've introduced new Lockdown Nacho Cheese Loaded Fries. Censored to reduce cravings. #LockdownSA pic.twitter.com/L9vNoFUIDY— BURGER KING® South Africa (@BurgerKingZA) April 23, 2020 ”

“We take our responsibility to our customers very seriously, and we hope that this campaign will help them to reduce their cravings to bearable levels during these extremely challenging times. Stay safe South Africa and we look forward to sharing a Whopper with you soon” Jones concludes.

Food porn: Images that portray food in a very appetising or aesthetically appealing way.*

- Burger King unveils How We Serve a King campaign, emphasising customer satisfaction 22 May 2024
- Burger King discovers a Whopper 6,500 light years away 22 Apr 2024
- Burger King South Africa celebrates local talent with the Suidoosterfees 15 Mar 2024
- Burger King is going the X-Tra Mile to give away X-Traordinary prizes 27 Oct 2023
- Burger King introduces a sizzling new addition: Black Mamba Peri-Peri Sauce 5 Oct 2023

Burger King

Welcome to BURGER KING® South Africa, the HOME OF THE WHOPPER®.

Profile | News | Contact | Twitter | Facebook | RSS Feed

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>