

Google SA's top search of 2016 was... Pokemon Go

Google has announced its annual Year in Search. Previously called Google Zeitgeist, it gives a snapshot of the trends, people and happenings that captured the nation's interest during the year.

This year's overall trending searches from South Africa have a decidedly global feel. Where last year's top searches - loadshedding and xenophobia - were distinctly local issues, this year's top searches show South African eyes are turned to the world at large, not just at home.

The top trending searches for South Africa for 2016 include Pokemon Go, Euro 2016, Olympic Games Rio 2016 and Donald Trump. Local news only gets a look in at number five on the list - Election Results - and that could refer to the local or the US elections.

Jacob Zuma and Public Protector topped the top trending South African politicians and prominent figures list.

Mandoza and Gugu Zulu, both of whom passed away this year, topped the top trending South African celebrities lists.
