

Carrick Group welcomes Bradd Bendall

Carrick Group has appointed Bradd Bendall as its new group sales director. Bendall's main responsibility in his new role will be to significantly grow the company's sales team. He brings in over two decades of sales experience, having previously worked as a general manager for operations at Pam Golding Properties. Prior to that, he worked in the sales departments at the African Life Assurance and the Ooba Group for 14 years.

Bendall said he is excited about his role and joining the Carrick Group. The group's chief executive officer, Craig Featherby, commented on Bendall's appointment: "He has significant experience in what it takes to build and manage big teams, combined with a people-focused leadership style. We are extremely excited to see Bradd get to work seeking out new opportunities and capitalising on those for the ultimate good of the business."
