

The future of reputation at Nedbank IMC

Issued by IMC Conference

31 May 2023

Emboldened by the real-time social media-driven environment, our customers and consumers have never been as vocally critical of brands as they are today. With this, reputational risk has never been more critical to the long-term management of brands and companies. Yet despite this, many brands still continue to flounder on the rocks of their reputations when the doodoo hits the fan.

Much of this could be that marketers are not embracing real-time data to drill into reputational fundamentals that surround them. It's time to get upclose&personal - this year's Nedbank IMC theme – to consider the future of reputation.

In a hybrid panel discussion, three highly credentialled thought leaders will lead us away from the best-laid-plans-that-sometimes-fail scenario and set about reframing our thinking around this critical topic.

International speaker Shayoni Lynn will approach the topic from a behavioural science perspective. Lynn is the CEO and founder at multi-award-winning behavioural science consultancy, Lynn. One of Lynn's service offerings is called the "misinformation cell" which uses research, strategy and response to break misinformation narratives. Lynn is a fellow of the Chartered Institute of Public Relations (CIPR) and the Public Relations and Communications Association (PRCA) and is chair of PRCA Cymru.

Also joining the panel is Dustin Chick who is the managing director of Razor PR, and a partner in the M&C Saatchi Group South Africa. Chick is recognised as one of the top reputation managers and communicators in Africa, having been named South Africa's best PR Professional in 2021 by the Public Relations Institute of SA (PRISA) and was previously named by as one of the Top 25 Innovators in public relations across Europe, the Middle East and Africa in 2019 by leading industry publication PProvoke. He also sits on the board of the PRCA Africa.

PProvoke is a global content platform that provides analysis and insight into reputation, public relations and communications trends and issues. PProvoke CEO and editor-in-chief, Arun Sudhaman will join the panel discussion remotely. In 2015, Sudhaman became the youngest-ever inductee into the International Communications Consultancy Organisation (ICCO) Hall of Fame. He is also a Trustee of the Institute for Public Relations and a PRCA Fellow. At the 2022 PRCA Asia-Pacific Awards, Sudhaman was named Journalist of the Year.
