

Identifying those missed callers

Cell C prepaid, postpaid and control chat subscribers are now able to access details of callers who did not leave voicemail messages while their phones were switched off, thanks to a recently introduced missed call notification feature. While the service requires a voicemail to be set up and calling line identity presentation (i.e. not registering unknown or private) to be activated, no other special settings have to be added for subscribers to access this service.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>