

SA to probe Microsoft cloud licensing deals

By Foo Yun Chee and Nilutpal Timsina

5 Apr 2024

A South African antitrust agency is set to investigate Microsoft over its cloud computing licensing practices, a source with direct knowledge of the matter said on background.

A view shows a Microsoft logo at Microsoft offices in Issy-les-Moulineaux near Paris. Source: Reuters/Gonzalo Fuentes

The South African case against Microsoft is likely to mirror the European Union antitrust case, according to the source.

Microsoft is not aware of any complaint filed by the South African competition authority, the company said in an emailed statement.

The Competition Commission did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

IBM and AWS expand partnership to accelerate generative AI adoption in Africa

27 Nov 2023

Big Tech under fire

The US software giant faces a EU complaint by rivals over its cloud computing licensing practices in the region.

Industry group CISPE, which includes members such as Amazon.com and 26 small EU cloud providers, filed a complaint in late 2022 alleging Microsoft's new contractual terms were harming Europe's cloud computing ecosystem.

Microsoft amended its licensing terms in mid-2022 after rivals in Germany, Italy, Denmark and France took their grievances to the EU competition watchdog.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Additional reporting by Yuvraj Malik, Priyanka.G

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>